

STRENGTHENING THE CONNECTION * EXPANDING THE CONVERSATION

PENNSYLVANIA'S SUICIDE PREVENTION MONTH GUIDE

SEPTEMBER 2026

Strengthening the Connection, Expanding the Conversation

Who else do you trust that we could talk to together?

What's one thing I can do to support you this week?

Please don't carry this by yourself. What do you need most right now?

Can we check in again tomorrow?

This September, Suicide Prevention Awareness Month, National Suicide Prevention Week (September 6th-12th), and World Suicide Prevention Day (September 10th) mark the final year of our national three-year theme of 'Changing the Narrative on Suicide.' This theme has helped emphasize the importance of caring and supportive conversations with individuals, and on communicating openly about suicide prevention within our communities. In recognition that suicide prevention requires a multifaceted approach, this year provides the opportunity to expand these conversations and strengthen connections at all levels of our work here in Pennsylvania.

Both research and lived experience tell us that connection is one of the most powerful suicide prevention strategies and can make all the difference in a person's life. Connection is for everyone. It brings joy, opportunity, and shared experience that gives life meaning and contributes to our well-being. It gives us a sense of security when we have trusting relationships with people we can go to for support when needed. It is a means of caring for those experiencing a crisis, and making sure we check back once the crisis has passed.

Connection has also helped us strengthen our state's suicide prevention infrastructure. Pennsylvania's Suicide Prevention Task Force, which includes more than 13 state agencies and Governor's affinity commissions, will be releasing a new statewide plan this September. This plan will highlight various initiatives in place across state agencies, as well as a commitment to work together on shared goals. State agencies and organizations have also partnered closely with counties and community organizations across the Commonwealth to unify and align efforts in meaningful ways. This has helped suicide prevention stay a priority.

Our collective work is having an impact. From 2023 to 2024, there was a decrease in our statewide suicide rate. This work has included community conversations and campaigns that raise awareness of suicide and key resources like the 988 Suicide & Crisis Lifeline. It has also included the provision of culturally relevant training within diverse settings. There has been increased efforts to identify those at risk of suicide and respond in trauma-informed ways, as well as expanded community-based response efforts and resources for suicide loss. Beyond numbers, the impact of these strategies is felt every day in moments of true connection between those involved in this work and those who are touched by it.

We hope this guide is useful throughout the year to support your community's ongoing suicide prevention efforts. You may adapt the contents as needed. There are also several standalone one-pagers for dissemination in your communities. By working together, we will continue to strengthen our efforts and expand our approach to suicide prevention in the Commonwealth!

Brief Statistics: Why Suicide Prevention Matters

We all want to live in healthy, happy communities that thrive in all aspects of wellness. Data such as the image below helps us demonstrate the severity of the problem of suicide and the lasting impact it has on a community. The data doesn't just represent a number, but someone's mother or father, brother or sister, neighbor, or loved one who has, for one reason or another, temporarily lost hope. When we promote resources like our hotlines and crisis centers, we frequently see increases in the number of people who reach out for help rather than struggling alone.

Suicide Data: Pennsylvania

This fact sheet reports data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) unless noted otherwise (see footnote). This is the most current verified data at time of creation (July 2026).

Populations at increased risk of suicide:

While anyone can experience suicidal ideation, some groups have increased risk factors. Below is a non-exhaustive list of some of these groups:

WORDS MATTER:

The Language of Suicide

It can feel uncomfortable, and sometimes even scary, to talk about mental health and suicide prevention, even though many people have been touched by suicide in some way. The term suicide centered lived experience refers to anyone who has had or is currently experiencing thoughts of suicide, survived one or more suicide attempts, lost a loved one to suicide, or provided substantial support to a person with experience of suicide (Roses in the Ocean, 2023). By finding the courage within ourselves to engage in open discussions, we can help save lives. Here are some tips that may help when engaging in courageous conversations.

SAY THIS...	WHY?
Died by suicide death by suicide lost their life to suicide	Compassionate, nonjudgmental language helps reduce stigma and acknowledges suicide as a complex health issue—not a crime or moral failing.
Survived a suicide attempt fatal suicide attempt non-fatal suicide attempt	Clear, nonjudgmental language respects the person's experience and avoids stigmatizing or misleading terms like "failed" or "successful" attempt.
[Name] is facing suicide [Name] is thinking of suicide [Name] has experienced suicidal thoughts	Respectful, person-centered language acknowledges their experience without defining them by it or using stigmatizing labels.
[Name] lives with schizophrenia People with mental illness [Name] has a substance use disorder	Person-first language shows respect for the individual, reinforcing the fact that their condition does not define them.

Creating an Effective Message for Suicide Prevention Across the Lifespan

While focusing on prevention efforts can seem overwhelming at times, your words and actions can help save a life. Here are some overarching guidelines for the development of your messaging to prevent suicide.

Evoke shared values

*Who are you attempting to reach? Schools? Faith-based institutions? First Responders?
Identify the value you want them to work toward.*

Example: Everyone deserves to feel safe, supported, and heard.

Acknowledge negative feelings, like discomfort, fear, or lingering doubts

By acknowledging difficulty, doubt, and discomfort, you can help your audience manage their feelings and avoid using them as a reason to avoid the subject.

Example: I realize that talking about the issue of suicide can make some of us uncomfortable.

Model a journey toward change, it's starting point and pivotal moments

Provide the next steps on how you will make prevention possible. Engage with survivors of suicide loss and individuals with lived experiences to light the way of healing for others.

Example: Many people have shared that hearing personal stories from survivors of suicide loss helped them feel connected and sparked hope, even in their most difficult times.

State the problem precisely

Identify what piece of the problem you are wanting to address. Choose information or a fact to support it.

Example: Feelings of discomfort or shame make it hard for people to talk about suicide, and that silence makes it hard for people to reach out and find help.

Show Progress

Identify examples (big or small) of how prevention efforts have helped your community.

Example: Trainings, such as QPR Suicide Prevention for Gatekeepers and Mental Health First Aid, have helped people learn to speak about these issues and offer support and assistance to people who are struggling with feelings of helplessness or despair.

Name concrete solutions

Be realistic. Make it achievable.

Example: We will provide training to individuals throughout our community so they can learn how to recognize the signs, respond, and refer someone to safety.

Connection is Prevention

Promoting healthy connections is foundational to upstream suicide prevention as social connectedness is a key protective factor across the lifespan against various negative outcomes. These connections foster a sense of belonging, reduce feelings of isolation, and provide emotional and practical support that can buffer people against stress, trauma, and mental health challenges."

Upstream Prevention in Pennsylvania

Community-based Peer Support

Peer Support Services - Specialized therapeutic interactions with self-identified current or former consumers of behavioral health services who are trained and certified to offer support and assistance with recovery and community-integration process.

Health & Social Collaboration

PA Navigate - An online tool that connects Pennsylvanians with community-based organizations, county and state agencies, and healthcare providers, for referrals to community resources that help them meet their most basic needs such as food, shelter, transportation, and more.

Workplace Wellness

State Employee Assistance Program (SEAP) - Employee Assistance Programs, like the State Employee Assistance Program (SEAP) available to Commonwealth employees, are a free service designed to assist individuals and their family members in resolving a wide variety of problems that may impact their job performance.

Youth Connectedness

Pennsylvania's Black Youth Suicide Prevention Workgroup - Invested in engaging Black youth and families, building strategic partnerships, identifying and reviewing data, and promoting culturally affirming suicide prevention resources.

Older Adult Engagement

Healthy IDEAS - An evidence-based community depression intervention program designed to detect and reduce the severity of depressive symptoms in older adults through community-based case management.

Senior Community Centers - The Commonwealth is home to over 422 Senior Community Centers which function as the cornerstones of connection within communities and serve as pillars of daily life for older adults. Within these centers, older adults can receive a nutritious meal, partake in social activities, and access a range of programs.

Veteran Connections

VETConnect - DMVA's VETConnect is a free information and referral database that allows veterans and veteran advocates access to statewide resources that improve the lives of service members, veterans, and their families.

Local Suicide Prevention Month Efforts

An abundance of suicide prevention work occurs at the local level in Pennsylvania all year. There are many events, activities, and campaigns planned throughout the Commonwealth, particularly during Suicide Prevention Month. Below are highlights from a few counties to share ideas and make connections. If you are interested in having your county's efforts highlighted in next year's guide, please fill out this form to let us know.

Butler County holds an annual Suicide Awareness Remembrance Rally to remember those lost to suicide, share lived experiences and highlight area resources. Butler County Crisis Line invites attendees to write messages of hope to display at the crisis center.

Blair County is hosting an AFSP Out of the Darkness walk.

The Centre County Suicide Prevention Task Force hosts a Suicide Prevention Rally featuring speakers, live music, a county proclamation, and resources. Centre County also proudly shares about their work to add safety measures in parking garages.

The Beaver County Zero Suicide Task Force will hold a community town hall, focused on education, prevention, and connection. This event features speakers on Loss Teams and workplace suicide prevention for skilled trade industries. Additionally, a countywide campaign and the Youth Ambassador Program students will raise awareness of resources like 988 throughout the community and at sporting events.

In Allegheny County, Suicide Awareness for Everyone (SAFE) will partner with community organizations to host a special screening of "American Solitaire" and include a conversation with community members.

Dauphin County ASPIRE will offer QPR, CAMS Care, and ASIST training for local community members.

Chester County Suicide Prevention Partnership will host a screening of the documentary, "The Journey Home," followed by a community conversation.

Suicide Prevention of York, a prevention, invention and postvention nonprofit, will provide education across the county.

Statewide Public Health Initiatives

Pennsylvania (PA) saw a decrease in the rate of death by suicide from 2023 to 2024 (EDDIE, 2026). It is important to acknowledge the synergy of public health efforts across the Commonwealth that are contributing to suicide prevention. These efforts are happening at all levels, including statewide, county, community, and within individual organizations. Below is a snapshot of ongoing implementation efforts overseen by state agencies. These initiatives strive to use data-driven and evidence-informed approaches to continue their impact over time.

988

SUICIDE & CRISIS
LIFELINE

For over 10 years, PA has been working with national partners to increase capacity to answer calls from Pennsylvanians experiencing a crisis. Since the implementation of the 988 Suicide & Crisis Lifeline in 2022, Pennsylvania's 14 call centers have maintained a monthly average in-state answer rate of 90%. Pennsylvanians can call, chat, or text 988 to receive 24/7, free, confidential care.

PA Suicide Prevention Task Force

PA's Suicide Prevention Task Force (SPTF) brings together multiple state agencies and Governor's Affinity Commissions dedicated to suicide prevention in the Commonwealth. The SPTF was formed in 2019 for the purpose of developing and overseeing PA's statewide suicide prevention plan. The SPTF recently developed a new, two-year plan and continues to collaborate to advance suicide prevention as a priority in PA.

Suicide and Overdose Death Review Teams

The PA Department of Health's suicide and overdose fatality review initiative, enabled by Act 101 of 2022, establishes county level teams to analyze suicide and overdose deaths and strengthen prevention systems. These teams review data to better understand contributing factors and pinpoint gaps in care and coordination. The program creates a structured, data driven framework designed to strengthen systems of care and reduce suicide and overdose fatalities across the Commonwealth.

PA's VA/SAMHSA Governor's Challenge

Since 2020, Pennsylvania's Department of Military and Veterans Affairs has led PA's VA/SAMHSA Governor's Challenge, working closely with partners at the federal, state, and local levels. This initiative is focused on promoting firearm safe storage and lethal means safety, raising awareness, and disseminating mental health and substance use education and resources to prevent suicide among service members, veterans, and their families (SMVF). The Plan. Pause. Protect. Campaign is a proactive suicide prevention strategy that everyone can access, encouraging people to plan for safety, pause to reflect, and protect life.

Garrett Lee Smith (GLS) Youth Suicide Prevention Grant

Since 2008, PA's Department of Human Services has received GLS grants from SAMHSA to work towards preventing youth suicide. The current project builds on previous grants by using the Zero Suicide framework to support cross-systems collaboration and timely referrals to evidence-based care for youth at risk of suicide. It is also focused on building partnerships to empower the voices of those with lived experience and create statewide suicide prevention resources to support youth and families.

Mental Wellness Resources

Our mental and emotional health are just as important as our physical health, yet stigma and shame have often made these topics taboo to discuss. As we continue to see an increase in mental health needs across our communities, we must bring mental health and well-being to the forefront of conversations. We all can play a vital role in promoting connectedness and resiliency.

Substance Use and Suicide

Substance use and suicide are closely linked, as alcohol and drugs can increase impulsivity, worsen mental health, and lower inhibitions, making suicidal thoughts more likely to turn into actions. Addressing substance use is an important part of suicide prevention and overall mental health care.

The graphic to the right reviews some important information regarding substance use and suicide.

DATA

Alcohol intoxication is a factor in 22% of suicide deaths.¹

20% of suicide deaths involve opiates.¹

While intentional overdose deaths have decreased overall, there has been an increase amongst:²

15-24 year olds
75-84 year olds
Black women over 18

COMPLEX RISK FACTORS

Both substance use disorder and suicide are complex, with multiple contributing factors including:^{3,4,5}

- Trauma
- Diagnosed mental health condition
- Lack of access to care
- Biology and environment

SHARED PROTECTIVE FACTORS

There are shared factors that both decrease risk of, and help those with, suicidal ideation and substance use, including:^{3,4,5}

- Positive connections
- Help-seeking behavior
- Supportive environment
- Sense of purpose

CONTINUING THE CONVERSATION

Many people with mental health and substance use concerns believe they should be able to handle it on their own.³

Having a supportive, non-judgmental conversation with someone can go a long way towards prevention.

Keeping Environments Safe

We can all do our part of creating and maintaining safe environments. Research shows that putting time and distance between a lethal means—such as a firearm—and those who may be in crisis can prevent suicide and save lives. Below is a graphic portraying strategies to consider for keeping your home environment safe, particularly when a loved one is at risk of suicide.

Creating a safety plan is a proven way to help someone manage suicidal thoughts and stay safe during a crisis. A safety plan includes personalized steps like recognizing warning signs, using coping strategies, reaching out to support people, and keeping environments safe. Postvention Response: An Important Part of the Suicide Prevention Conversation

Postvention is an essential component of a comprehensive suicide prevention framework. Postvention is the response to a death by suicide and offers an array of services that may apply to any tragic loss. The goals of postvention are to promote the healing and recovery of those impacted by the loss of a family member, classmate, colleague, friend, or community member. If the death was a suicide, a postvention serves to help identify and refer those who may need additional support and reduce the risk of contagion and other adverse outcomes.

Sample Proclamation

An official signing of a proclamation by your county commissioners is a great way to publicize the kick-off for Suicide Prevention Month and the activities that will be taking place throughout the month. Below is sample proclamation verbiage:

Suicide Prevention Month 2026

Suicide Prevention Day, September 10, 2026

WHEREAS, suicide is a public health concern; and

WHEREAS, in the state of Pennsylvania, one person dies by suicide nearly every five hours, making it the leading cause of death for ages 10-14, and the second leading cause of death for ages 15—34 in 2024 (CDC, 2026); and

WHEREAS, over 5.4 million people in the United States have lost a loved one to suicide (CDC, 2019); and

WHEREAS, each member of our community is valued and irreplaceable; and

WHEREAS, talking openly about stress and psychological health builds trust, reduces barriers to care, and enables early intervention; and

WHEREAS, though we recognize there is no single cause or single solution to suicide, we know that access to support and treatment can save lives; and

WHEREAS, local and statewide suicide prevention efforts should be developed and encouraged to the maximum extent possible, and

WHEREAS, most suicides are preventable. By learning the signs and symptoms and limiting access to lethal means, we can work together to help prevent suicide.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED the [COUNTY] Board of Commissioners does hereby proclaim September 2026 as “Suicide Awareness and Prevention Month” and September 10, 2026 as “Suicide Awareness and Prevention Day” in [COUNTY].

Working Together.

Organizations across the state of Pennsylvania continue to work together to provide mental health and suicide prevention education and awareness events. Jana Marie Foundation, Garrett Lee Smith Youth Suicide Prevention Grant, Prevent Suicide PA, Aavidum, and the Services for Teens At Risk (STAR) Center are proud to provide this informational packet to help you build awareness and take action to prevent suicide within your community.

About Jana Marie Foundation

Jana Marie Foundation, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization based in State College, Pennsylvania, harnesses the power of creative expression and open dialogue to spark conversations, build connections, and promote mental wellness among young people and their communities. With programs offered throughout Central Pennsylvania and beyond, the Foundation envisions communities working together to knock down walls and transform emotional distress into resilience and hope. Guided by best practices and research, Jana Marie Foundation delivers evidence-based mental health and suicide prevention programs that equip individuals with the knowledge, skills, and confidence to recognize warning signs and offer support. Its engaging youth programs—ranging from leadership development to arts-based initiatives—empower young people to build resilience, develop healthy coping strategies, and strengthen their mental health. In addition, the Foundation facilitates a Survivors of Suicide Loss group for adults, providing a compassionate space for those grieving the loss of a loved one to suicide to connect, share, and heal together.

About Garrett Lee Smith Youth Suicide Prevention Grant

The Garrett Lee Smith Youth Suicide Prevention Grant (2024-2029) is a five-year federal SAMHSA grant awarded to the Pennsylvania Office of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services at the Department of Human Services (DHS-OMHSAS). Using a two-tiered model, this project focuses on youth under the age of 24. Tier 1 is statewide and partners with youth serving organizations to support families who have a youth at risk of suicide and to elevate the voices of youth and families with suicide-centered lived experience. Tier 2 works with specific counties to build capacity for evidence-based treatment and improve coordination to provide timely access to care for youth at risk of suicide.

About Prevent Suicide PA

Prevent Suicide PA supports those who are affected by suicide, provides education, awareness, and understanding by collaborating with the community to prevent suicide, and reduces the stigma associated with suicide. The organization envisions having a Commonwealth where every life is valued, that everyone has the support necessary to get help when needed, and that hope and healing abounds in every person.

About Aavidum

Aavidum is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization that empowers youth to shatter the silence surrounding depression, suicide, and other issues facing teens. The word Aavidum, which means “I’ve got your back,” was created by students after a classmate died by suicide. Aavidum uses free student-driven clubs, curricula, and other programming to inspire schools and communities to adopt cultures of care and advocacy, encouraging all members to have their friends’ backs. Aavidum exists in nearly 300 elementary schools, middle schools, high schools, and colleges.

About Services for Teens At Risk (STAR) Center

Services for Teens At Risk (STAR) Center is a specialty clinical, training, and research program within the division of Child and Adolescent Services at UPMC Western Psychiatric Hospital (WPH) and the University of Pittsburgh Department of Psychiatry. STAR Center provides outpatient assessment and treatment for depressed, anxious, and suicidal children and youth. Services were expanded in 2007 to include Intensive Outpatient Programs (IOP) for depressed and suicidal teens and further in 2017 to an IOP designated for transition-age college students. STAR Center Outreach adapts and disseminates information about best practice clinical care into practical guidelines for educational and community settings and offers trainings and consultations. Additionally, STAR Center offers a Survivors of Suicide bereavement support group to adults who have lost a loved one to suicide. The group provides a safe environment for survivors to voice the painful feelings that suicide leaves in its wake. STAR Center strives to integrate education, intervention, and research into a seamless whole.
